

Abstract

The invention relates to a method for the production of geotextiles from melt-spun fibers. The melt-spun endless fibers are continuously transported in an unimpeded manner on a screen belt along all hardening and post treatment zones.